A cool application that helps you automatically power off your computer from a selected time. No installation required. Shutdown Controller pro Limitations: Quite time-consuming or error-prone, depending on your knowledge. Verdict: You're looking for a portable burner that lets you quickly save media files to a CD or DVD disc in a matter of seconds. If that's the case, then you can't go wrong with Wondershare CD Burner 3.0. This freeware lets you do just that. And what's more, it makes this process as easy and effective as possible. To start out, the app is pretty simple to use. First of all, there's a clean and attractive interface, with a map on top of it. Once the map is clicked on, you're taken to a media selection menu where you can input any media files that you want to burn to the CD. The only limitation is that it will only let you use a single media file per shot at a time. Once you've selected the media files you want to burn, you're ready to burn them. The process is all pretty easy, especially if you've used a burning application before. Indeed, the application offers a fast, simple and intuitive interface that makes the whole process quick and easy to go. Wondershare CD Burner 3.0 can also burn audio CDs, but the interface isn't quite as friendly as with media files. You can still get the job done, but it's a bit more difficult. It's pretty powerful too, as you can batch-burn multiple media files at once, letting you accomplish just about everything you'd ever want in a burner application. What's particularly nice about it is that it's quite affordable for what you get. To sum things up, we can say that Wondershare CD Burner 3.0 is a very effective burner application that lets you burn both media files and audio CDs quickly and easily. Do you want to edit pictures and adjust the color with ease? Home Improvement Applications for Smartphone Users By Gola Chase Home improvement and renovations have become very popular but not with a specific purpose, but for entertainment, normal recreation or saving money when buying groceries. However, like with most other trends that happen in our homes, improvements that occur in these areas have also become increasingly sophisticated. Because the majority of the population is now working, home improvements now include the use of smartphones. Connectivity in the home: The first improvement that has come with the use of smartphones is the connectivity that the human body has to the device. Originally, phones could only be used for voicemail, which has also been improved. Now, rather than just voicemail, a majority of the basic services of a phone, such as calendar, contacts, and clock can also be used without picking up the device. Another example of how home technology is improving is wi-fi technology, which can now be used for some applications from the phone. These applications include Skype, Whatsapp, and some games. Previously, it was not possible to get more than two to three devices to use at one time, but now if more than one person uses a wi-fi connection, it is possible to work on multiple applications at once. Phone applications: Another improvement that has come about through the use of smartphones is that there are now many applications designed for both iPhones and Android smartphones. These programs can be used for everything from the camera to games to music. People who are talking to someone, using WhatsApp, or have a game playing cannot have their conversations interrupted. There are various other applications that are available to download, and the selection seems to be endless. How to Find the Perfect Restaurant Reservation System for Your Event?
